Article 1 The College of Management formulated the Regulations for the Establishment of a College of Management Business School Accreditation Promotion Committee (hereinafter referred to as ‘these Regulations’ and ‘the Committee’ respectively) to actively promote and maintain the College's business school accreditations, and strengthen the University's competitiveness in the field of business and management.

Article 2 The NPTU vice president for academic affairs shall serve as the Committee convener, while the dean of the College of Management shall serve as vice-convener, and the chairs of graduate departments slated to undergo evaluation in accordance with business school accreditation regulations shall automatically serve as ex officio members. In addition, the College dean shall appoint the vice-dean to serve concurrently as the Committee's executive director. When necessary, the Committee may invite relevant personnel to attend Committee meetings.

Article 3 Aside from the ex officio members mentioned above, all departments and graduate institutes that undergo evaluation should choose a faculty member who does not hold a concurrent part-time administrative position to serve as an ‘elected member’. If the elected member is relieved of their duties after resigning from the University or taking temporary leave without salary, the department or graduate institute in which they served shall select a new member to assume the position, so as not to delay the progress of Committee tasks.

Article 4 The Committee's work tasks are as follows:

1. Confer regarding plans for yearly work tasks related to applications for business school accreditation.

2. Discuss the suitability of educational objectives proposed by the College and its departments and graduate institutes.
3. Regularly review faculty members' qualifications based on stipulations set forth in business school accreditations, and consult on possible measures for improvement.
4. Regularly review the suitability of education objectives, course designs, and the effectiveness of instruction offered by each department, and strategize possible measures for improvement.
5. Discuss specific measures for improvement based on suggestions given in on-site evaluation reports during business school accreditations.
6. Discuss all matters related to preparation work for receiving commissioners during business school accreditation on-site visits.
7. Confer regarding any other tasks involved in applying for business school accreditation.
8. Handle a wide range of matters related to the maintenance of business school accreditation status after initially obtaining accreditation.
9. Oversee all matters pertaining to the promotion of business school accreditation.

Article 5 The convener of the Committee shall convene and host all related meetings, while the executive director shall follow up on resolutions made during meetings and assess the progress of their implementation. In addition, the chairs of departments undergoing evaluation shall seek to carry out related duties and implement work tasks assigned in resolutions made by the Committee. The executive director is responsible for correspondence on all matters related to business school accreditation, and for compiling related yearly reports.

Article 6 The Committee shall convene at least once per semester and unscheduled meetings may be called as per required.

Article 7 The Committee's convener, vice-convener, executive director, and all its members serve in an unremunerated capacity. However, contingent on the workload involved, the dean may apply for approval from the University president to reduce the teaching hours of certain Committee members.

Article 8 These Regulations shall be published and implemented after being passed respectively in a college affairs meeting and an administrative meeting, and gaining the approval of the University president. The same applies to all amendments.
